NATIONAL PROHIBITION UPHELD BY THE SUPREME COURT

ENFORCEMENT ACT ALSO IS RULED CONSTITUTIONAL

All Proceedings Seeking to Restrain Putting Act Into Effect are Dismissed; Opinion of Court as Whole Sets Forth Only Bare Conclusion; Supplemental Opinion by Chief Justice White.

MEANS EVENTUAL END OF LIQUOR BUSINESS IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Both the Federal prohibition amendment and the Volstead enforcement act, passed by Congress, were held constitutional today by the Supreme Court.

The opinion was rendered by Associate Justice Van Devanter. The opinion was very short, setting forth only the court's conclusion.

Chief Justice White rendered a supplemental opinion concurring in the one rendered by Justice Van Devener, but going more fully into the questions involved.

Federal court decrees dismissing injunction proceedings instituted by the Kentucky Distillery and Warehouse company to enjoin enforcement of the act were sustained by the court. Injunction sought by George B. Demsey, a Boston, Mass., wholesale liquor dealer, to restrain enforcement of the act against him also was denied by the court.

Injunctions restraining prohibition officials from interfering with the Manhattan Products company, a Wisconsin corporation, in the manufacture of beer containing more than one-half per cent of alcohol were dissolved by the court.

The court upheld federal court decrees, dismissing proceedings brought to restrain the prohibition amendment from being enforced against Christian Feigenbaum, a brewer of Newark, N. J. Federal court decrees denying similar injunctions brought by The St. Louis Brewing association likewise were affirmed.

Validity of the prohibition amendment and portions of the enforcement act, was involved in seven separate proceedings before the Supreme court. Two of these were original suits brought by Rhode Island and New Jersey as sovereign states to enjoin enforcement in their jurisdictions upon the grounds that both enactments were unconstitutional. The other cases were direct appeals from lower court decrees.

Steps to institute the suits were taken immediately after the amendment became effective on January 16 and on motion of counsel their consideration was expedited.

In both the Rhode Island and New Jersey suits the validity of the 18th amendment was attacked, but the New Jersey case also alleged that even if the amendment were valid, the enforcement act was unconstitutional because it had not been concurred in by New Jersey under provisions of the amendment giving the federal and state governments concurrent power to enforce prohibition. New Jersey also contended that if the entire enforcement act were not unconstitutional, the portions of it limiting the alcoholic content of beverages to less than one-half of one per cent and relating to the dispensing of liquors for medicinal purposes were invalid.

The cases reaching the court on appeals were those of the Kentucky Distillers and Warehouse company; Christian Feigenbaum, a Newark, N. J., brewer; the St. Louis Brewing association; and George B. Demsey, a wholesale liquor dealer of Boston, Mass., who lost injunction proceedings in the lower court. The other case before the court was an appeal by the government from a decision of Federal Judge Clegg enjoining federal officials from interfering with the Manhattan Products company, a Wisconsin corporation, in the manufacture of beer containing 2.5 per cent alcohol.

In all the cases a general attack on the amendment was made on the ground that it was revolutionary and constituted legislation in the guise of a constitutional amendment designed to regulate the private habits of individuals; that it interfered with the states' police powers; that it was invalid because adopted by two-thirds of the membership present when the vote was taken and not by two-thirds of the membership and that the amendment was not ratified by three-fourths of the states owing to provisions in many state constitutions requiring that amendments be submitted to a referendum.

THINGS SHAPING WELL FOR SPROUL, GOVERNOR THINKS

All Big Fellows Have Had Trial Heats, Can't See They'll Get By, He Says.

DEADLOCK AT BEGINNING

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Today's business at Republican National convention headquarters was largely among the state delegations which were organizing and electing members to the convention committees. Several good fights in the selection of national committeemen were being staged.

"All the big fellows will have their trial heats but I don't see how they are going to get by," said Governor Sproul, presidential candidate from Pennsylvania. He had nothing to say regarding his candidacy except that "things are going along nicely."

Governor Sproul said a noticeable feature of the pre-convention hours was the good feeling among the delegations which led him to believe the fight would not be protracted.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The influence of the Republican National convention at noon tomorrow apparently today was to further, behind instead of clarify the question of who is to be the nominee for president.

Wood, Lowden and Johnson supporters were driving hard for the advantage and all of them were claiming gains as the balance of the unstructured delegates rolled into Chicago but the best claims of the three amounted to little more than one fourth of the total required on the first ballot and it takes a majority to nominate.

With prospects of deadlock thus becoming hourly certain "dark horse" possibilities increased their activities and further tangled the knotted ring of control for which the party leaders are wrestling.

The outlook helped to enliven the squabbles over contested convention seats and the struggle over permanent organization of the convention. At least some and possibly all of the 127 contests decided by the National committee will be brought before the credentials committee for a re-hearing. A few may be decided finally on the convention floor.

Realizing the power which might be wielded by a friendly staff of permanent officials the managers for the candidates are studying carefully before they jump one way or the other in the choice of a permanent chairman. Senator McCormick of Illinois and former Senator Norwicker of Indiana are most prominently mentioned for the chairmanship but the strength behind neither had yet become clearly defined and the choice may be postponed until the last minute.

If the outlook over candidates and organization is uncertain most of the leaders agree that the situation as regards platform is at least beginning to take form. Only a few of the most troublesome planks remain to be agreed upon.

BOOMS AT THE PEAK, "ABE" WARNS OF IMPENDING DECLINE

Prediction of the Arrival of Many Delegates is Borne Out.

WOMEN ADD TO VARIETY

And Color, Especially Those From the South; Situation Languished Over Sunday But Crowds Enthusiastic; First Strength Test Favors Johnson.

Special to The Courier.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Morning broke as usual in Chicago today seemingly regardless of the titanic struggle just ahead between the political giants of the city's milk wagon had returned from their rounds and the thick morning haze had melted away, many rural delegates were hurrying in and skurrying out.

"My attention has been called to an article in your paper, entitled 'American Legion Riled Over Kendall,' in which it was stated that when the vote was taken on the Bonus bill, I was absent and not voting. I was not at the convention."

"In this connection I desire to call your attention to the Congressional Record of May 23, on pages 534 and 539 of which you will find the following account of the Bonus bill vote: 'Yea, 224; nays, 155; not voting, 42. The following members who were not present were present for and against the bill: 'Mr. Graham of Pennsylvania (for) with Mr. Gard (against). 'Mr. Dale (for) with Mr. Houston (against). 'Mr. Rhodes (for) with Mr. Gould (against). 'Mr. Hayden (for) with Mr. Edmunds (against). 'Mr. Kendall (for) with Mr. Kitchin (against). 'I take it that you are sufficiently familiar with Congressional procedure to know that my pair (for) killed the nays (against) of the Democratic minority leader, Mr. Kitchin and was equivalent to a vote for the bill."

"Several weeks ago I accepted an invitation to address the G. A. R. of Conference, at their Memorial Day exercises, which were held on May 29th. To keep this engagement I left Washington on Friday night, the 28th of May, the same day on which an agreement was reached to vote on the Bonus bill the following day. At that late date I felt that I should not break my engagement with the old soldiers, realizing that it would be difficult for them to obtain another speaker on such short notice, and further, being assured by the members of Congress in charge of the Bonus bill that it would be passed with an overwhelming majority. However, before leaving Washington, in order to record my position on the bill, I arranged a pair with Representative Kitchin, who would have voted against it had he not been paired with me."

"I am writing you simply to call your attention to the official Congressional Record as to my position on the Bonus bill. As to the American Legion leader, 'Kitchin,' I am perfectly satisfied to have the soldier boys in my district be the judges as to whether or not I have satisfactorily represented them as a member of Congress, and am willing to accept their verdict."

MINISTER REFERS TO CHIEF OF POLICE OF CITY AS BEING INVOLVED IN WHISKY SALES

AUTHORITY MUST BE RECOGNIZED, GRADUATES TOLD

Students Leaving High School Have Part in the Crisis Facing World.

CONSCIENCE THE GUIDE

Seated in a reserved section in the center of the auditorium last night, the 93 members of the class of 1920 of the Connellsville high school, wearing gray caps and gowns, heard the annual sermon, delivered by Dr. Herbert McCord, student pastor of the University of Pittsburgh. Every seat in the big house was filled, many persons standing.

Dr. Moore painted a picture of the world as a vineyard let out to the people to work with God as a husbandman. He is an exacting husbandman, the minister declared, and asked why God could not expect results when they would mean happiness for those in the world.

The speaker told the students to go into life to get results and not expect a snap. "Make up your mind that your task shall be to enlarge; that this nation, after you enter its life, shall not be the same as before. May God guide your lives whatever your vocations may be."

Just now, the speaker said, there is a tremendously serious thing for this generation to face: "an age that seems Bolshevik, an age that does not desire to obey authority."

"There must be recognition of authority," he told the class. "There is often a desire to rebel against it. There is the authority at home, at the school, in the courts, but nevertheless it must be obeyed if the world of God is to go on. There is no greater court than one's own conscience. Still that voice can be subdued. We must listen to it, however, for through it God seeks his authority."

"If you can just get the right idea towards the world, as you make your life in it, it will make a great difference in the outcome. Too many today are looking for a snap. After all there is so much more in the world than just the getting of money. So much more that is really worth while. You should feel as though the world is a very large contract let to you. Recognize the influence of your life on the nation. A great obligation rests on you."

Rev. J. L. Proudfit, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, presided. Music was furnished by Kiefer's orchestra and anthems were sung by the high school chorus.

Rev. G. W. Buckner of the Christian church made the invocation, and Rev. Francis J. Scott of the United Presbyterian church read the Scripture lesson. Rev. William H. Hewick of Trinity Lutheran church led in prayer as did Rev. J. H. Lamberton. Rev. J. S. Showers pronounced the benediction.

DISCHARGE OF RIFLE BY ACCIDENT WOUNDS LEISNERING CITIZEN

Son Is Handling Weapon at Time, Not Knowing It Was Left Loaded By Borrowing Friend.

A projectile from a Winchester rifle that was not known to be loaded, seriously wounded Alex M. Weaver of Leisnering No. 1 Sunday about noon when it pierced the ceiling of a room at the Weaver home, tore away a piece of flesh from his chest and went through his right arm at the elbow, disappearing through the floor of the room in which Mr. Weaver was sitting. The victim is at the Cottage State hospital.

Mr. Weaver's son, Emerson, was removing the paper wrapping in which the weapon had been returned from the home of Charles Hammel, a friend, to whom it had been loaned, when the cartridge that had been left in it exploded. While members of the Hammel family were said to have known that the shell remained in the gun, this fact had not been made known to the Weavers. Later it was learned that an effort had been made to extract the shell but it failed and when it was returned there was neglect in so informing the owner.

Mr. Weaver has charge of the First Aid squad and the emergency hospital at Leisnering.

Information Comes to Him (Rev. Buckner) From Reputable Woman, He Says.

"FISHING CLUB" THE PLACE

Remarks Are Dropped During Sunday Sermon in Which Street Carnival for Firemen Is Scored; Is Opposed to Public Fund for Convention.

During an arraignment of the street carnival as a means of financing the volunteer firemen on their annual trip to and from the convention of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's association in his Sunday morning sermon, Rev. George Walker Buckner, pastor of the First Christian church, made the charge that Chief of Police W. B. Bowers was involved in the illegal handling of liquor at a West Side establishment, referred to as the "Fayette County Fishing Club."

A reputable woman informed him, the minister said, that two men in an automobile, one of them being the "chief of police," drove up to the "fishing club"; that a man came out of the place and deposited a "package" which was presumed to contain whisky in the automobile between the chief and the other man, and that the man who deposited the "package" paid money to the chief.

"Sale of liquor in the city is open," the minister insisted, "and the officials are fully aware of it, and some of them involved." He said it was reported to him that young men regularly patronized the "fishing club" and came out intoxicated.

Referring to the carnival the minister said he was informed by the carnival management that the city license fee was not all that was exacted of it—the intimation being that "gratuity" entered very largely into the securing of permission to put on the show. The manager of the carnival told the committee of the ministerial association, Rev. Buckner said, that it cost more "gratuity" in Connellsville than any place in which the company had ever shown, it being necessary to "see" a larger number of officials, here than in any county the show has exhibited.

Carnivals were roundly condemned by Rev. Buckner. It is just as impossible to have a "decent carnival," the minister said, as to have a "holy hell" or a "pious devil."

Rev. Buckner declined the "honor" of being designated a censor of the carnival. His position in the crusade against immoral shows and gambling was that of a third member of the vice committee of the ministerial association, the others being Rev. J. L. Proudfit and Rev. G. L. Richardson, he said.

Speaking of the visit of the committee in its official capacity to one of the shows known as "Creation," Rev. Buckner referred to Councilman Jesse Cypher, a member of the fire department. When he and Rev. Proudfit entered the tent where the show was on the ministers said Cypher, who was seated just inside the entrance, almost knocked them over in his hurry to get to the management of the show to have the thing staged in conformity to the ideas of the ministerial critics.

"We were not fooled." "We're not dumbed," Rev. Buckner observed in relating this incident.

Rev. Buckner came out flatly against the plan to raise a fund for the financing of the trip to the firemen's convention on the ground that the conventions are far from being for the uplift of the community in which they are held. "That in Connellsville last summer was referred to as a prayer meeting in comparison with some that have been held."

During the course of the campaign against gambling devices at the carnival Rev. Buckner said the firemen came back with the charge that churches resort to paddy wheel and lottery schemes to raise money. Unfortunately, he said, the charge is true, "but don't do it any more." He insisted it was the duty of churches to go to conduct their affairs that "the forces of evil" might not have the opportunity to use any such thing as a club over them.

Later he was superintendent of the Dunbar Furnace company of Dunbar and 31 years ago moved to McKeesport where he engaged in building and construction. He was a member of Washington Lodge, F. & A. Grape-Nuts is rich in the solid meaty values of wheat and malted barley and has a substantial amount of sugar.

This sugar is not added in making but is developed from these grains by processing and long baking.

This decreases your sugar requirements, for the average cereal needs sugar for greatest palatability. Grape-Nuts needs none.

Bear this in mind when you order your cereal and ask for Grape-Nuts.

Endiner's is not a get-rich-quick

OUR RETIRING POSTMASTER

Without regard to political faith the patrons of the Conneltsville postoffice are generally appreciative of the excellent character of the service rendered under the administration of W. R. McGinnis the retiring postmaster.

By being alert to provide improvements to adapt the office to the growing needs of the community, it serves
 Mr. McGinnis has kept Conneltsville in the forefront among offices of its class. The growing business has been dispatched with promptness, a splendid operating force has been built up and a fine spirit of cooperation among its members has been developed and the affairs of the office administered in a business-like way despite the handicaps the postal system of the country has been obliged to suffer generally.
 During Mr. McGinnis' administration the country passed through the stress of its greatest war which made excessive demands upon the postoffice but they were met in a highly satisfactory manner by the force under his control. On the eve of the great expansion which is to follow the period of readjustment of business and industry the office is in excellent shape to assist Conneltsville in going forward.

Credit for this is largely due Mr.
 McGinnis and it is ungrudgingly given by all citizens who willingly admit that he has given us quite as good an administration as could be expected of a Democrat in a Republican community, which is some admission, as Democrats will themselves concede.

EDUCATION DOES PAY

The return of the commencement season occasions in the minds of some persons a revival of the question,
 Does education pay?

Considered in the light of facts as they become more definitely and clearly established by experience and the statistics from year to year this once much debated question becomes much less debatable than formerly.
 In proof of the profitability of an education information has long been available, but never in quite so concrete form as now when wide range of comparisons can be made between different sections of the country in which education of the youth is given varying measures of public support.
 An illustration the American Legion weekly presents some contrasts which prove quite conclusively that the material benefits derived from study and improvement of the mind as provided by public education are almost directly proportional to the amounts paid by the states to provide such facilities for its young people.

"Before the war," says the weekly,
 the per capita annual wage received by citizens of France—the average earnings of every man, woman and child in the country—was $165. In England it was $180 and in Germany $125. In the less developed countries of Europe where schools were fewer and illiteracy more general the average was considerably lower—Spain $80, Greece $85, Russia $70. The point was made recently by Mr. R. T. Fisher of the Federal Board for Vocational Training—that the earnings of the citizens of various countries are in proportion to the amount they spend on education. Getting back home in Massachusetts the average annual per capita earning before the war was $146. In Tennessee it was $174. Massachusetts spent on education an average of $38.55 per student annually,
 Tennessee, an average of $4.62.

It is sometimes hard to distinguish between cause and effect. There may be some speculation as to whether Massachusetts spends $38.55 per student annually because her citizens earn an annual wage of $486 or her citizens earn an annual wage of $486 because she spends $38.55 per student annually. But by carrying statistics a little further the situation is somewhat clarified. In Massachusetts the average boy who quits school at the age of 14 earns in the course of his lifetime, $26,657 while the average boy who devotes four years more to a high school course earns $58,900.

True these statistics do not cover the war period when excessive earnings were made by education and other workers whose degree of education did not maintain the average proportion to earnings, but even during those hectic days the workman who had had the advantage of an education was able to perform his tasks with greater ease and consequent larger returns.

One unpleasant fact which these statistics emphasize by omission is that comparatively few of the young people who enter our schools complete the high school course. They thus deprive themselves of the preparation they will later find themselves in such great need to prove in their own lives that education does pay not only in the material rewards, but in all that makes for the highest and best in citizenship.

The closing of the carnival season appears to have afforded opportunity for the opening of something else which will be of equal or greater public interest.

Developments at the Chicago convention indicate that a Keystone state

 going to put the Keystone in the arch

 next four years.

The unexpected has happened with such regularity with respect to the can always be expected to happen—at least under the present national ad-

Correcting Our Besetting Sin

Cleveland Daily Iron Trade

Some good undoubtedly will come out of the popular wave of excitement over the published announcements of merchants of reductions in some of their prices. More or less temporary in its operation much like the "overall" campaign that it succeeded in the popular eye it serves a useful purpose in calling attention of the careless and even reckless buyer of all commodities in which he particularly is interested to the fact that he should make his purchases with discrimination care and some sense of proportion as to his absolute needs. And her needs also.

Talk of reduction of credits to certain manufacturers of goods known in various parts of the country, said to be suggested by federal reserve bank officials moves toward the same end as the popular overall campaign the reduced buying cry, etc. but by another route. Extravagance has been the besetting sin of America for years, waste of natural resources because we have such abundance of them. Our national sin cannot be corrected in a day nor a week whether by the wearing of overalls or abstention from eating meat more than once a day which to some overfed people seems to be a privation whereas it would be a blessing to their overworked stomachs.
 These things are all right in their way
 but the federal reserve board's move is the most significant yet. It gives promise of bringing concrete results eventually which after all is the thing to be desired.

Costs of all sorts as applied to the most widely consumed commodities have been long sight of for so these many months. This is admitted upon all sides. The relation of the selling price of a bale of cotton for instance to the price of a yard of muslin appears to have disappeared for the moment. Whether all these relationships are such as are alleged to be by certain labor union propagandists for purely selfish purposes is a problem merely of mathematics which can be solved by those informed as to the facts. Amateur figures of course are barred by all sensible men, and these amateurs now are having their public hearing. But through all the smoke of the popular waving of arms and explosions of verbal fireworks or street corners and street cars there appears to be discernible a likelihood of the American people returning to financial sanity, a resumption of that old and ingrained Yankee sense of keenness for trade, call it bargain hunting if you will which in the end will save the day.

Much of the new day stuff printed in "forward looking" journals of the moment is, after all another case of looking backward toward safe practices and purposes. It is "new" to those who never gave a thought to such things before. Speed the coming of that day!

UNIONTOWN MEN HELD FOR COURT IN OVERHOLT CASE

Gun Found in Their Room Identified by Watchman at Distillery, Who Was Held Up.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTSVILLE, June 8—William Halford and R. C. Pond, both of Uniontown, arrested in connection with the hold-up of William Shaffer, night watchman at the West Overton distillery, last Tuesday night, were given a hearing before Justice of the Peace William Kennel Saturday afternoon, charged with highway robbery. They were held for court.

Shaffer was unable to identify the men but identified the gun found in the room after the men had been arrested as his own. Attorney Myer Morris represented the defendants and although it was claimed that since the room in which they were arrested was public other men might have left the gun there, Squire Kennel held them.

MUNHALL FIREMEN TO BE HERE ON SATURDAY

Old King Rite put the jinx on the ball game that was to have been played Saturday between the J. B. Killeys of Pittsburg and the Connellsville Independents. Hundreds of fans for miles around were disappointed. Delegations from Smithfield, Republic, Brownsville and other points had planned to attend, showing conclusively that the fame of the locals is spreading far and wide.

Though it was unfortunate that the game was canceled, the fans will be given another opportunity to see the locals in action next Saturday, when they take on the Munhall Firemen. This team, while not so widely known as some others on the independent circuit, is one of the strongest playing this season.

Assistant Manager Burke of the Trotter baseball team set out to do or die last week in arranging games for his boys and has certainly prepared a schedule which will keep the team busy the balance of the month. Eleven games have been scheduled, five at home and six to be played abroad. The games and dates follow:

- June 9, Leisnering No. 2, abroad.
- June 10, Colonial No. 3, abroad.
- June 11, York Run, at home.
- June 14, Palmer, abroad.
- June 15, York Run, at home.
- June 16, Colonial No. 1, at home.
- June 17, Lambert, at home.
- June 21, Colonial No. 1, abroad.
- June 22, Palmer, at home.
- June 29, Whitney, abroad.
- July 1, Colonial No. 1, at home.

Manager Burke stated that this schedule is only preliminary to a number of games he is after and will try to get more games to fill in between these dates.

In answer to numerous inquiries regarding when the Independents will play their next game, the management wishes to state that the club will play at home every Saturday during the season and two games on all coming holidays, weather permitting. All the games will be played at Fayette Field.

John DeTemple, manager of the Keystone Baseball team, has reorganized his team, making improvements that will be beneficial in the playing of the outfit. The personnel of the reorganized team is: Clawson and Blas, catchers; Addis, Rehbeck and Beckel, pitchers; "Pep" Francis, first base; Alderfer, second base; DeTemple, short; Danner, third base; Quinn, left field; Moloney, middle field; Evans, right field, and McCaslin, utility fielder. DeTemple would like to hear from the Captain Clark, West Penn Power and other clubs wishing to cross bats with the Keystone. He can be reached at the 3130 mill. The Keystone team was to play Ohio's Saturday but the game was called off on account of the rain. The game will be played next Saturday.

The American Chain of Braddock went down to defeat before the Republic team at the latter place yesterday to the tune of 3-1. Republic had an imported battery from Oil City, McFarland doing the pitching. This is the pitcher the Chainmakers had when they played Oil City, losing 6-4. Henry Moody, Geisler and Haggerty, independent players, helped to put it over on the Braddock crew yesterday.

Masonstown knocked off the fast Leche team of Pittsburg at the former place Sunday by a 11-9 score.

St. Vincent College will be the head-line attraction with the Connellsville Independents Saturday, June 19.

Dennis Johnson's aggregation of ball players will hook up with the Masonstown colored team on the 15th. "No Hit Juggler" Johnson will do the twirling for Dennis.

The Baltimore & Ohio team will try to get another game under its belt tomorrow when it goes to Somerset to play the B. & O. team of that place.

Arrangements are under way to secure the J. B. Killeys for a game here on July 3. This is a strong team and will not be allowed to get away on account of the rain.

There are 154 games in the usual National League season. Quigley frequently works in pre-season and post-season affairs, such as the world series contests in 1919. His usual total of baseball contests each year is close to 170. During the short term of football Mr. Quigley crowds in 20 or more gridiron games, frequently working three or four times a week. He does most of this officiating in Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Iowa and Texas.

"ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE"—With Bert Lytell in the leading role, and a selected comedy are being shown today. "Alias Jimmy Valentine" is a role entirely different from any he has portrayed in Metro's "fewer and better" series of special productions. His previous appearances, as the temperamental modiste in "Lombardi, Ltd." and as the supercilious and brilliant "Charley Steele in Sir Gilbert Parkers "The Right of Way," are far removed in character from the magnetic jailbird hero, "Alias Jimmy Valentine," whose name is a household word in America.

"To say that the part is one admirably suited to Mr. Lytell's abilities rather discounts them for it is becoming known that this young Metro star does not need a role tailored to him. He is probably the one young male star of the screen who makes his characterizations individual, makes them different from the conventional type of theatrical hero. Jimmy is a person, however, whom Mr. Lytell knows from having portrayed him in stock on the stage.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"CAPTAIN SWIFT"—A Vitagraph feature, with Earle Williams in an interesting role, is today's leading attraction. This highly interesting play by C. Haddon Chambers, the English novelist, has a prologue, with the scenes laid in Australia. The story proper has London and its environs for its locale. Mr. Williams, who makes most of his features at Vitagraph's West Coast studio, went across country to the Brooklyn studio to appear in "The Fortune Hunter," under the direction of Tom Terris. When this feature was completed all the scenes for "Captain Swift," with the exception of the prologue, were made under the direction of Mr. Terris in the vicinity of New York. This was in winter. The prologue called for hot, sandy deserts and the hush country of Australia. Quite naturally they could not be taken in the east during winter, although some excellent sites were found on Long Island. Therefore Mr. Williams went back to California, where the remaining scenes were made under the direction of Chester Bennett. Fortunately, aside from Captain Swift, only one character appears in both the prologue and the story proper, so only one member of his supporting company accompanied the star.

The Man Who Wasn't Himself

By ROBERT AMES
BENNETT

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman)

As it chanced, however, the young man glanced first at the miniature. At once the incredulity of his expression gave place to surprise and perplexity. He looked over for a closer look, his cheek only a few inches from the cheek of the girl. Except for a certain pinched look about the nose the absence of the mustache and a marked thinness of jaw and cheek, the face in the miniature was his own—it was his face; it might look in ill health.

The young man drew back, his face clearly expressive of his astonishment. "It is a most remarkable resemblance," Miss Kirkland said. "I no longer wonder that you were deceived at the first, and this continued delusion on your part can, no doubt, be accounted for by the intensity of that first impression."

"You still refuse to believe," she cried. "You do not recognize your own picture! Can nothing make you remember?"

"I have tried to convince you of my identity, but it seems to be breath wasted. My intention was to give you some of the details of my life during the last year or two."

"That would be quite useless. Mama explained that you are suffering from double personality, and I remember papa's once telling me that in such cases the memory often is distorted and confused. But papa will soon cure you of your delusions."

"He shall not have the chance," declared the young man, unable to conceal his annoyance. "I will leave town tonight."

"Oh, but," she protested. "But if papa proves to you this evening that you are my own Will?"

He could no longer resist her insistence. "Very well," he agreed. "I promise to believe the proofs. Will you do the same?"

"Of course! Don't I know already? You, too, will be convinced."

Radiant with delight, the girl turned to the piano and dashed into a brilliant selection from Chopin. The music covered the sound of the opening front door from the hall beyond the drawing room. Presently a gentleman appeared, unannounced, in the arched entrance of the drawing room.

His gray-brown eyes shone with shallow brilliancy as they rested upon the couple at the piano. Clinton had risen. He stood gazing down at Ellen Kirkland with an air of attentive admiration, as if he were looking for something deeper and more serious. Bemm sauntered over to a bookcase. Though he made no noise, Clinton glanced along the row and perceived him.

The girl, pale and alert, raised her head. "Oh, it's you, Charlie," she cried. "Then he remembers you?" She looked at the guest, her eyes dark with gentle reproach. "Will you now can you remember Mr. Bemm and not me?"

He smiled ruefully. "A woman unconvinced against her will."

"I am convinced of my Will," she corrected.

Clinton burst into a laugh so infectious that first Bemm and then Ellen joined in.

"My dear," remarked Mrs. Kirkland, quietly entering at the side door. "Good evening, Charlie. What is it you find so very amusing?"

"Such a joke, mamma! It is about Will being mistaken."

"Will?" queried the lady, with a delighted glance at the guest.

He met her gaze with a semi-comic look. "Miss Kirkland still insists that I am not myself. I certainly will not be much longer, if you join her and Mr. Bemm in trying to convince me I'm not."

"In my opinion," replied Mrs. Kirkland, "it will be as well for Ellen to finish the selection, she was playing."

Ellen met her mother's glance, and at once continued her Chopin. She was still playing when her father burst in upon them.

"Good medicine," he commented. "Nothing better than music to stir dormant associations, unless it is orders. Go on. Don't let me stop you."

His daughter began again the passage that he had just stopped. He sat down close beside his wife and looked meditatively at the backs of the two young men, who stood on each side of the girl. She is fully prepared. She would have known him if he were here—the dear girl! But I explained your wish to see what would be the effect on him of coming home and first seeing her there. It only Mrs. Lowrie were home too! He is extremely fond of his stepmother.

CHAPTER III.

Welcome Home. The playing ceased. Doctor Kirkland rose and advanced upon the group at the piano. "Come moment, Ellen," he said. "Two young men at a time is one too many. I am going to run off with Mr. Clinton."

"Papa!" "If he will take a little spin with me."

"But why take away—take him away now?"

"He will be interested to meet Amy."

"Of course. How stupid of me! But if you're hurried, papa, Charlie can take us down in his car."

"To be sure," agreed Bemm.

"Mr. Clinton has no objections, I prefer to take him myself, at once."

"May I ask," began that young man.

"Certainly, certainly. I shall explain on the way down. Come. The ladies will soon follow us in Charlie's car."

"At once!" exclaimed Ellen.

"No," ordered her father, glancing at his watch. "Not before half an hour at least. Come, Mr. Clinton."

The guest stifled at the peremptory tone of his host.

"Does it not strike you, sir, that this proceeding is rather odd?" he asked.

"It must indeed seem so to you, Mr. Clinton," replied Mrs. Kirkland. "But my husband will explain on your way down."

"I see," he rejoined, and he stared at the physician, his blue eyes bright with angry suspicion. "You are all under a delusion that I am dattinsane. You have spoken of a sanatorium. I have heard of supposedly insane persons being decoyed into institutions."

"Decoyed! You think I—" gasped the physician. He choked between indignation and mirth, and wagged his plump hand at his wife. "I tell him—what—why?"

She smiled at the guest with unmistakable candor in her look. "We should have explained the situation to you at once," she said. "It is true we still doubt your identity. My husband considers that the quickest way to settle the matter is to take you home to your sister."

"Home? Sister?"

"You still—very well, then—to see Miss Amy Lowrie. Your—pardon me—his mother is away, as I believe we told you at the depot. But even though she is not there Amy will be certain to know you."

"She will know me for what I am—an absolute stranger to you all," he qualified.

"Oh, Will, please!" implored Ellen.

"We shall see, my dear," soothed her mother. "The moment he and Amy see each other there will no longer be any doubt of the truth."

"Then I shall be glad to go at once," said Clinton. "This misunderstanding is as embarrassing to me as I fear it is disagreeing to Miss Kirkland. The sooner it is settled the better."

"Do not follow for at least half an hour," Doctor Kirkland ordered the others as he went out with his guest.

At the curb he sprang into the front of his car and motioned to Clinton to seat himself in the tonneau. The moment they were aboard the car shot out into the street and whirled away much faster than the city speed limit.

A light high up against the starry, blue-black sky, outlined the dome of the capitol. Doctor Kirkland ran on to within a block of the capitol grounds and drew up before an old brick mansion.

"Here we are," he said, and he started in across the sidewalk without looking about at his passenger.

"Good evening, Tittie," said Doctor Kirkland, opening the screen door.

"I guessed it was your ring, doctor," said the woman with the familiarity of an old servant. "Come right in—and the other gentleman, too. Miss Amy is just—my lands! If it isn't Mr. Will. Well, I never! Looking down at him, she said, 'I am glad to see you home again, Mr. Will! I'll run at once and tell Miss Amy. She'll be most tickled to death!'"

She left the visitors and hurried back along the narrow hallway, calling breathlessly, "Miss Amy! Miss Amy! Where are you? Lord bless us! Here's Mr. Will home again! Where are you? Here's Mr. Will! Where?"

"Will? Will? Oh! Then he has come! Oh!" came a girlish shriek of delight in the hall above.

Clinton had stepped inside, after Doctor Kirkland. Looking up at the turn of the stairs, he caught sight of two little slippers feet—twinkling on the steps of the top flight. In a moment, their owner swung around the turn and drew down the long, straight

HOME MADE RECIPE CATARRH AND COLDS

Nonexpensive—Cut This Out.

Thousands are making this beneficial remedy at home and anyone who has catarrh or a cold can do the same.

Ask your druggist for three quarters of an ounce of Mentholized Aconite and pour it into a pint bottle, then fill the bottle with water that has been boiled.

Gargle the throat as directed and sniff or spray the liquid into the nostrils twice daily. It's a simple way to get rid of cold and catarrh and keeps the nasal passage and throat so clean and healthy that germs of flu or any other germs will have a hard time gaining a foothold.

WAS NERVOUS AND RUN DOWN

RESTORED TO NORMAL HEALTH BY BIO-FEREN

"I feel I owe you people a world of gratitude for the benefit I have received in using your wonderful remedy—Bio-Feren Tablets, which have completely restored me to normal conditions," says Joseph E. Webb of Munich, Germany.

Bio-Feren is without doubt the grandest and quickest remedy for nervous, run-down, weak, anemic men and women ever offered direct through the druggists and is not at all expensive.

Take two after each meal and one at bed time, and after seven days take one after each meal and one at bed time until the supply is exhausted.

Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if you are not in better health—if you do not feel much healthier, more vigorous and less minded, yes, twice as much as you did before, the druggist who sold you the tablets will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

All druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand, or can easily get it for you.

Seven a day for seven days—Wonderful results.

lower flight as if winged. The young man had a swift vision of a graceful, animated little form with outflung arms, of a charming little dimpled face, of a pair of starlike brown eyes. Then the vision was at the foot of the stairs.

He drew back with what seemed to be instinctive reserve. Doctor Kirkland frowned and shot a glance from him to the girl. She had not passed in her restaurant she perceived the young man's attempt to avoid her and disregarded it. From the foot of the stairs she darted past the physician to his companion. Clinton continued to draw back. He put out his hands as if to keep her away from him.

"Wait, wait!" he protested. "I must—"

But she had slipped between his hands and flung her arms around him. Her little bosom pressed so close against his coat that he could feel the beat of her joyously leaping heart; the crown of her fragrant, glossy brown hair touched his chin. From between his lips and the came a muffled cry of ecstatic delight: "Dear, dear Will!"

Colonel Greene was called to tell what he knew about the selection of delegates from Texas to the Republican convention. He said he had contributed money to the mixed faction of "black and white" Republicans near Questions.

1. What is a common cause of deafness in young people?
2. What are the common signs of tonsils and adenoids which are so large that they require treatment?
3. Why should tonsils and adenoids be removed?

ADENOIDS

Jim, nine years old, thin, pale, irritable and distinctly deaf, was two years behind children of his age at school; partly because he lost time from many sore throats; partly because he was dull in his lessons.

When in his sixth year he was examined by the school doctor, who reported "enlarged tonsils and adenoids; mouth breathing; underweight." His mother was told that he would have frequent colds and sore throat, would probably catch all the diseases going, which he regularly did, and would not grow up to be a strong man, unless these defects were corrected.

His mother said he would outgrow his tonsils, that it was better to have a sick child than a dead one, that she knew of a child that had never been well since he had been operated on and, that even if she were willing, the fright of it would kill Jimmy. She could not even get him to a dentist, though his teeth were bad. Moreover, a doctor had told Jimmy's father when a child, that he should have his tonsils out, but his parents wouldn't have it, and he had outgrown it.

It is true that Jim's father was a good provider, even though he was chronically catarrhal, snored habitually, breathed through his mouth, was a poor mixer and had been sickly all his life.

One day Mrs. Williams, referred to by some, as the town "ladybody," called upon Jim's mother to give her a "piece of her mind."

Mrs. Williams believed in Women's Rights, in metal garbage cans, with closed covers, in babies protected from flies and other things, and spared neither herself nor anyone else in her efforts to attain her ideals.

She opened the interview by remarking in her sometimes pleasant, always forceful way, "What right have you to keep Jimmy sick and miserable and make him a weak and useless man?"

Jimmy's mother, bustling with resentment, replied, "I spend nearly all my time trying to keep him well."

"What did the doctor tell you?" said Mrs. Williams.

"He told me he was a delicate child."

"Why did he say he was a delicate child?"

"Well, he said he couldn't be well unless he could breathe through his nose and that he couldn't breathe through his nose unless his tonsils and adenoids were taken out, but that is a dangerous operation and I won't have it done. My husband had tonsils and adenoids, but he has outgrown them."

"Was your husband in the army?" asked Mrs. Williams.

"No, he tried to go, but they would not have him."

"Why wouldn't they have him?"

"Well, because he has always been delicate and he can't hear out of one ear and has a small chest."

"Was he a delicate child?"

"Yes, and Jimmy inherits it, but not from my side. My people have all been strong."

"When he was a child did they try to take out his tonsils and adenoids?"

"They did, but his parents wouldn't allow it."

"Does he like to be deaf and carry his mouth open like a fly trap and have a sunken chest?"

"No, but his father was delicate, too."

"Do you know that if Jimmy has his tonsils taken out and his adenoids removed for that in six months he will be as strong as any boy in this street. He will catch up in his school and he won't get sore throats any more and his hearing, if any ears, will not grow any worse. But if you don't have it done, he may be as deaf as a post and he will never grow up to be a real man. Do you know that?"

"That's what the doctor said, but I don't believe it."

"Because your husband was deprived of his rights is no reason why your son should be denied his. Give Jimmy a chance. I am afraid you are thinking of yourself and not of Jimmy's good. How do you think he will feel when he grows up and realizes because you were selfish he didn't have his tonsils?"

"Do you really think Jimmy will ever think that?"

"I don't think it, I know it. Now what are you going to do about it?"

In many children the tonsils are so large and the tissue in the back of the nose (adenoids) so overgrown that the child has to breathe through his mouth; some children always, some only when these structures are swollen by slight cold. As they grow older the tendency to blocking by this tissue becomes less marked. In the meantime they often suffer damage which cannot be repaired. Habitual mouth breathing means chronic catarrh.

Most of the contagious diseases are implanted in the throat. Children with these enlargements are particularly subject to these diseases, such as diphtheria, cerebrospinal meningitis, infantile paralysis, measles, scarlet fever. They are also subject to frequent sore throats which are likely to involve the ears and make them hard of hearing.

These children breathe through their mouths, are weak physically and their minds are not as bright. They cannot be as big or as strong or as fine men and women as they would if they had not this condition of the throat.

This condition can be safely, quickly and easily remedied by a throat specialist, who by a simple operation enables the child habitually to breathe through the nose.

Something.

The College Boy—Dad, I wish you'd spare me a hundred.

His Father—It's outrageous. You're twenty and you've never made anything for yourself.

The College Boy—Beg pardon, sir, but I always make my own cigarettes.

Running No Chances.

Wife—You knew I had friends coming to the house this evening. What do you mean by coming home an hour after they're all gone?

Hubby—I wanted to be sure they'd all left.

How Mean of Her.

Mr. Shallowpate—Which do you think counts for most in life—money or brains?

Miss Castigione—I see so many people getting along with so little of either that it's hard to say.

Poor Company.

Joan—You shouldn't judge that man by the company that he keeps.

Heck—Why?

Joan—He's the warden of the penitentiary.

SOMETHING LEARNED EVERY DAY.

Frank—Poor Jones! He has lost all his money in a wild-cat mining company.

Ethel—Merry! I didn't know you had to mine for wild cats.
